EMPLOYEE RETENTION INITIATIVES

The importance of providing mental health support for employees is becoming increasingly evident, especially as a tool for retention.

A 2019 survey cited by McKinsey revealed that “91 percent of employees surveyed believed that their employers should care about their emotional health, and 85 percent said that behavioral health benefits were important when evaluating a new job. In fact, the respondents said that when evaluating the benefits of a new job offer, on-demand mental health support came second after corporate wellness initiatives, ahead of financial advising, gym memberships, and free meals.”

A different McKinsey study also found that “providing mental health support for Gen Z is critical for employers from a workforce recruitment and retention perspective, as 60 percent of Gen Z employees surveyed report that mental health resources are important in selecting an employer, and 57 percent say they are important when deciding to stay at an employer.”

A Harvard Business Review article from 2018 also speaks to the issue of supporting mental health in the workplace. “When we acknowledge our mental health, we get to know ourselves better, and are more authentic people, employees, and leaders. Research has found that feeling authentic and open at work leads to better performance, engagement, employee retention, and overall wellbeing.”

While providing coaching and therapy in support of all employees is important, there are additional and unique stressors facing minorities that may impact worker retention.

Corporate Retention Services:

CWC provides career counseling, to improve employee performance.

We also include topics such as professional etiquette, differing work styles across teams, conflict resolution (direct feedback vs addressing issues via 3rd parties), sensitivity to speaking up among large groups or teams, being assertive vs perception of being aggressive, fear of risk-taking or standing out from peers, and repairing co-worker relationships.

We provide a safe space where the person can talk about their work experiences, and focus on and prioritize their well-being in both their professional and personal lives.

We know that for an employee to feel included, they need to be valued for their unique attributes that contribute to the greater whole of the organization.

We spend time with each individual to connect their background and circumstances to the manner in which these factors surface in their output with regards to their work style and ethic.

Who We Are

We are a premium executive leadership service that focuses on confidential therapeutic approaches for the career professional to bring alignment between individual purpose and the larger goals of the organization.

We create a psychological safe place for employees to be open and authentic, to help deepen their connection to their employer.

CWC helps to provide a communication strategy with those employees to help alleviate this pressure, navigate the workplace, and coach for performance.

Our licensed therapists and certified coaches have worked with corporations such as the Coca-Cola Company, Google, Lenovo and CARE, with a particular focus on founders and entrepreneurs

Expected Outcomes

We consider a pilot program a success if we are able to track utilization of our coaching and therapy services that reflect outcomes such as: reduced attrition, career trajectory, performance improvement, sense of community, and corporate loyalty.

We also utilize satisfaction surveys to measure employee engagement with the program.

Compared to average EAP service utilization rates of ~5%, based on our previous experience, we would expect 30% or greater utilization, with most of these employees participating in multiple, on-going bi-weekly sessions delivered electronically via secure and confidential telehealth services such as VeeSee.
